Brown Egg Layers

Rhode Island Red

Through the years this breed has maintained their reputation as a dual purpose bird. It is a truly American breed known for their outstanding egg production of large, brown eggs and their ability to withstand our harsh New England winters.

Black Australorp

One of the best layers of large, light brown eggs of all the heavy breeds. They are extra-large birds of a quiet & gentle nature and stand confinement well. Pullets will mature early & will start laying at about 5 months of age. Excellent cold tolerance.

Barred Rock

One of the all-time favorite dual-purpose breeds in this country. They are prolific layers of large, brown eggs and very tolerant of our cold New England winters. Their solid plumpness and yellow skin make a beautiful, heavy roasting fowl. A large bird of good disposition.

Buff Orpington

Extra-large, stately birds of a quiet disposition. They are an excellent dual-purpose breed. Their heavy, full plumage make them outstanding winter layers of large eggs. These "Golden Beauties" are one of the most popular breeds around. They are also excellent setters and mothers.

Silver Laced Wyandotte

A large, colorful, hardy, productive breed. The close-fitting rose comb and good body size are valuable assets for winter laying. Cold weather doesn't seem to bother them at all as their hardiness and vigor keep them laying large brown eggs straight through the winter.

Specialty Breeds & White Egg Layer

Araucana/Ameraucauna (The “Easter Egg Chicken”)

A special cross known for their ability to lay colored eggs of shades varying from turquoise to deep olive to shades of brown. Beautiful birds, the adults are of medium size and exhibit a combination of colors and patterns. A unique breed and great fun when the eggs start coming!

Red Star (Sex-Link Variety)

One of the best x-large, dark brown egg layers that continue to lay right through hot or cold weather. A large, early maturing bird with an excellent disposition. They bear confinement well and are extremely winter hardy. A sex-link chick is one that can be sexed by their color at the time of hatch so there is 100% sexing accuracy!

White Cochin

One of the oldest Cochin varieties. A feather footed breed that are like giant “snowballs” with masses of soft, white downy plumage. They are beautiful birds of a quiet disposition and an outstanding breed for exhibition. Medium, brown egg layers.

Light Brahma

A very old feather footed breed originating from Asia. An extra-large bird that is exceptionally quiet, gentle and easy to handle. Their small pea comb, great size and heavy plumage make them almost immune to cold weather. Good producers of large eggs, especially in winter, and will also set.

Pearl White Leg Horn

One of the best white egg layers of all time. Only 4lbs. at maturity, they start laying at 4 ½ - 5 months and continue laying right through our hot summers and cold winters. They require less space and feed compared to other larger breeds so they are one of the more economical breeds to raise.

IMPORTANT!
